1. Group Member: "Our current project timeline seems too tight."
Response: "I completely agree with you."

2. Group Member: "The introduction needs more background information."
Response: "That's a good point."

3. Group Member: "We should consider a more interactive presentation format."
Response: "Absolutely!"

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Adding Information

4. Group Member: "The results section is clear and concise."
Response: "In addition to that, we should add more visuals."

5. Group Member: "We've covered the main points in our discussion."
Response: "Furthermore, we need to include some case studies."

6. Group Member: "The survey data supports our hypothesis."
Response: "Another point to consider is the demographic breakdown."

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Disagreement

7. Group Member: "I think we should skip the literature review."
Response: "I see your point, but the literature review provides essential context."

8. Group Member: "The project doesn't need a detailed budget."
Response: "I'm not sure I agree with that. A detailed budget is crucial for planning."

9. Group Member: "We should allocate more time to editing."
Response: "However, we also need to ensure we have enough time for the final presentation."

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Inviting Further Input

10.Group Member: "Our hypothesis seems solid."

Response: "What do you think about this?"

11.Group Member: "The methodology section is comprehensive."

Response: "Can anyone add to this?"

12.Group Member: "We've outlined the key findings."

Response: "How do you feel about it?"

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Clarification

13.Group Member: "We should use a mixed-methods approach."

Response: "Could you clarify that?"

14.Group Member: "The results are statistically significant."

Response: "What do you mean by that?"

15.Group Member: "The conclusion needs to be stronger."

Response: "Can you explain that in more detail?"

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Summarizing

16.Group Member: "We've discussed various strategies."

Response: "To summarize, we need to focus on the most feasible one."

17.Group Member: "There are several possible outcomes."

Response: "In conclusion, we should prepare for the most likely scenario."

18.Group Member: "Our data analysis is nearly complete."

Response: "So, what we're saying is, we're ready to draft the final report."

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Suggesting Ideas

19.Group Member: "We need to improve our engagement with participants."

Response: "How about we use more interactive tools?"

20.Group Member: "The introduction feels a bit weak."

Response: "Maybe we could start with a compelling story or quote."

21.Group Member: "We're struggling to meet the deadline."

Response: "What if we divide the tasks more evenly?"

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Expressing Opinions

22.Group Member: "I think we should focus on qualitative data."

Response: "In my opinion, quantitative data is also important."

23.Group Member: "The findings section is the most critical part of the report."

Response: "I believe that the methodology is equally important."

24.Group Member: "We should use more charts and graphs."

Response: "From my perspective, a mix of visuals and text works best."

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Asking for Opinions

25.Group Member: "The introduction needs more work."

Response: "What's your take on this?"

26.Group Member: "We should include more recent studies."

27.Group Member: "The conclusion could be more impactful."

Response: "What are your thoughts?"

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Agreeing with Reservations

28.Group Member: "We can skip the literature review to save time."

Response: "I agree up to a point, but the literature review is essential for context."

29.Group Member: "Let's allocate most of our budget to marketing."

Response: "That's true, but we also need funds for development."

30.Group Member: "We should focus solely on local data."

Response: "I see what you mean, however, global data provides a broader perspective."

Group member: _____

Response: _____

Offering Alternatives

31.Group Member: "We should hold the presentation in the main auditorium."

Response: "Alternatively, we could use the smaller conference room for a more intimate setting."

32.Group Member: "Let's use a survey to collect data."

Response: "Another option could be to conduct interviews for more in-depth insights."

33.Group Member: "We should follow the traditional format for our report."

Response: "There's another way to approach this, like using a more interactive digital format."
